Description :

PDF-ad61b | During the 1930s the popular press were carrying stories of a death ray that could disable aircraft, and it became such a population notion that an investigation was carried out by a government scientist, Robert Watson-Watt. His discovery was that it was not that electro-magnetic waves could interfere with aircraft, but that aircraft could interfere with radio transmissions. The strategic importan... Life at a Secret Location: A Witness to the Birth of Radar and its Postwar Influence
